"Eat With Your Pup"

This website is going to be about places in Los Angeles where you can go to eat with your dogs. This website will represent restaurants and cafes that are dog friendly. The content of the website will be written based on authors and people based in LA experiences, various articles published in magazines and on the web. Some images of the website will be taken by the author, as well as images taken by other photographers.

The style of the website will be clean, but fun and colorful. Theme will support the subject of playfulness and friendship with your dog. It will be simple, but visually entertaining and with variety of imagery. This can become a portfolio piece because it will be well executed and organized. Visually it is supposed to look clean and interesting. Also, through time this website can grow by collecting and presenting more information about more different places. I have a dog and as an owner of a pet, this information is interesting and insightful to me, which is why this website will be able to become a portfolio piece.
